First-Class Package Service Gets Zone-Based:

Major USPS package services such as Priority Mail, Priority Mail Express and Parcel Select are charged based off of both weight and zone. In an effort to standardize all their package services, First Class Package Service—which currently only uses package weight to determine its cost—will also be priced based off of weight and zone. Zone 1 is the closest to the shipper and Zone 8/9 will be the furthest and the most expensive.

Currently, a 7 ounce package costs $3.05 no matter where it is going. Looking at the new rates for 2019, that 7 ounce package will cost $3.18 for Zones 1 and 2 and up to $3.63 for Zone 9. When First Class Package Service becomes zone-based, it will be easier to compare it to other USPS services as well as major carrier services, making it an apples to apples price comparison.
